HISTORY

Michael Thonet (1796-1871) and his five children were the most successful manufacturers of furniture in the Industrial Age. Having been invited to develop a patent in Austria by Chancellor Metternich, who had seen his products at the Exhibition held by the society of friends of arts in Koblenz, in 1842, Michael Thonet left Boppard in Germany, to settle in Vienna, where in 1853 he founded the company "Gebrüder Thonet" by involving his five sons. In the Hapsburg capital, Michael Thonet abandoned the more traditional technique of glued lamellar wood in favour of the industrial chemical - mechanical steam bent process. This innovation led him to begin producing wooden furniture, presenting a collection of elegant, yet practical designs that could be manufactured on a larger scale. He immediately supported this with a distribution and sales network that was capable of penetrating any market. It was during this time that products such as chair No. 1 designed for the famous Viennese Palais Schwarzenberg made their début, gaining fame as 'typically' Thonet, and from which many other models were then designed, up to and including the classic chair No. 14. The company's use of high technology and production techniques, together with widespread fame and a growing reputation, encouraged the most important Viennese architects to design new products. Otto Wagner commissioned the furnishing of the Post Sparkasse. Adolf Loos designed the chair for the Café Museum, in 1895 writing: "When I was in America, I realised that the Thonet chair was the most modern seating available". In 1911, the Gebrüder Thonet catalogue boasted 980 different models. By the end of the second world war, independent production plants had been set up in various different countries and developed into separate businesses.

In Austria, the home market of Gebrüder Thonet, the business was rebuilt by descendants of Michael Thonet, including his great-grandson Fritz Jakob Thonet as well as Fritz Jakob's children Evamarie Thonet and Richard Thonet. After the war, they had to start from scratch, with little more than their experience and passion for furniture. They recommenced their business in one of Gebrüder Thonet's former warehouses in Vienna. From 1948 on they rented a production site in Rohrau, Steiermark, before they finally built their own production site in Friedberg in 1962. In 1976 the Austrian business changed its name from Gebrüder Thonet to its current name Gebrüder Thonet Vienna. More recently, Gebrüder Thonet Vienna GmbH (GTV) has developed work in a successful blend of the traditional and the modern, of continuity and renewal, with a new production program that begins by re-editing a series of Gebrüder

At the same time, GTV stands for contemporary furnishing. Advanced production techniques are applied to innovative designs and uses of materials, to create highly sought-after, multipurpose furnishing items. Truly original, up-to-date solutions that integrate well with the more classic products of its catalogue, now reworked. Items such as chair No. 14, of which more than 50 million were made between 1850 and 1930, have gone down in history for their fine design and manufacturing quality, and yet still today excite and attract new generations. GTV always succeeds in finding the perfect combination of tradition and innovation, assisted by continuous research into new, clear-cut, versatile designs. GTV is open and looking to the future, without, however, leaving the values and experience of the past behind. This collection is a true reflection of the evolution of our times.

GESCHICHTE

Michael Thonet (1796-1871) und seine fünf Söhne waren die erfolgreichsten Möbelhersteller des Industriealters. Auf Einladung des österreichischen Kanzlers Metternich, der seine Produkte auf der Ausstellung des Vereins der Kunstmfreunde Koblenz gesehen hatte und ihm vorschlug, sein Patent in Österreich zu entwickeln, verließ Michael Thonet im Jahre 1842 das in Deutschland gelegene Boppard, um sich in Wien niederzulassen. 1853 gründete er gemeinsam mit seinen fünf Söhnen das Unternehmen „Gebrüder Thonet“. In der Hauptstadt des habsburgischen Reiches ging Michael Thonet von der Technik des geleimten Lamellenholzes zu der des unter Dampf gebogenen Rundholzes über, d.h. zu einem chemisch-mechanischen Verfahren industrieller Natur. Dank dieser Innovation begann er, Holzmöbel herzustellen, indem er eine Kollektion mit vier gleichermaßen eleganten und rationalen Formen schuf. Zugleich erlaubte ihm das dabei angewandte Verfahren die Herstellung großer Mengen. Dazu gesellte sich sofort ein Vertriebs- und Verkaufssystem, das in der Lage war, in jeden beliebigen Markt vorzudringen. In jener Zeit entstanden Produkte wie der Stuhl „Nr. 1“, der für das berühmte Palais Schwarzenberg in Wien entworfen wurde. Er gilt als der „typische“ Thonetstuhl, von dem später die unzähligen Modelle bis hin zum Stuhl „Nr. 14“ abgeleitet wurden. Der Einsatz modernster Technologien und Herstellungsverfahren, die Verbreitung der Produkte und die zunehmende Bekanntheit des Unternehmens veranlassten die bedeutendsten Wiener Architekten dazu, neue Produkte zu entwerfen. Otto Wagner ließ die Einrichtung für die Postsparkasse herstellen. Adolf Loos entwarf den Stuhl für das Café Museum und schrieb 1895: „Als ich in Amerika war, begriff ich, dass der Thonetstuhl der modernste Stuhl ist, den es gibt.“ Im Jahre 1911 zählte der Katalog der Gebrüder Thonet 980 verschiedene Modelle. Am Ende des Zweiten Weltkriegs entstanden in verschiedenen Ländern unabhängige Produktionseinheiten, die sich in getrennte Unternehmen entwickelten. In Österreich, dem Heimatmarkt von anzubieten. Zugleich repräsentiert GTV die Vorstellung von zeitgenössischer Einrichtung. Durch den Einsatz fortschrittlicher Produktionstechniken werden Design und Materialverwendung weiterentwickelt, um sehr begehrte, vielfältig einsetzbare Einrichtungsgegenstände zu schaffen. Es handelt sich um innovative und zeitgemäße Lösungen, die sich nahtlos in die klassischen Stücke des Produktkatalogs einreihen. Die aufgrund von Form und Verarbeitungsqualität in die Geschichte eingegangenen Stücke, wie der Stuhl Nr. 14, der zwischen 1850 und 1930 mehr als 50 Millionen mal hergestellt wurde, können noch heute Emotionen hervorrufen und neue Generationen faszinieren. GTV gelingt es, Tradition und Innovation perfekt miteinander zu kombinieren und dabei stets nach neuen, klaren und vielseitigen Formen zu streben. GTV ist offen und zukunftsgewandt, ohne dabei die Werte und Erfahrungen aus der Vergangenheit aufzugeben. Diese Kollektion spiegelt die Evolution unserer Zeit wider.

STORIA

Michael Thonet (1796-1871) e i suoi cinque figli furono i produttori di mobili di maggior successo dell'era industriale. Invitato dal cancelliere austriaco Metternich, che aveva visto i suoi prodotti all'Esposizione della Società degli Amici delle Arti di Coblenza, a sviluppare il proprio brevetto in Austria, nel 1842 Michael Thonet lasciò Boppard, in Germania, per stabilirsi a Vienna, dove nel 1853 fondò l'azienda "Gebrüder Thonet" coinvolgendo i suoi cinque figli. Nella capitale dell'impero asburgico, Michael Thonet passò dalla tecnica del legno lamellare incollato a quella del tondino incurvato a vapore, cioè a un processo chimico e meccanico di tipo industriale. Grazie a questa innovazione iniziò a produrre mobili in legno propnendo una collezione di forme eleganti e insieme razionali, con un procedimento che consentiva la produzione in grande serie. A questo si aggiunse subito, un sistema di distribuzione e di vendita in grado di penetrare qualsiasi mercato. In quel periodo nacquero prodotti come la sedia "N.1" progettata per il famoso palazzo Schwarzenberg di Vienna, considerata la sedia "tipo" Thonet, da cui derivarono poi innumerosi modelli fino alla sedia "N.14". Conoscenze tecnologiche e produttive di alto livello, diffusione dei prodotti e notorietà dell'azienda spinsero i più importanti architetti vienesi a progettare nuovi prodotti. Otto Wagner fece realizzare gli arredi per la Postsparkasse, Adolf Loos disegnò la sedia per il Café Museum e scrisse nel 1895: "Quando ero in America compresi che la sedia Thonet è la sedia più moderna che ci sia". Nel 1911 il catalogo Gebrüder Thonet contava 980 modelli diversi. Al termine della seconda guerra mondiale nacquero unità di produzione indipendenti in varie nazioni che svilupparono imprese differenti. In Austria, patria di Gebrüder Thonet, l'attività fu ricostituita da alcuni discendenti di Michael Thonet, compreso il suo bisnipote Fritz Jakob Thonet e i suoi figli Evamarie Thonet e Richard Thonet. Dopo la guerra, dovettero ricominciare dal nulla, con poco più che passione e conoscenza per i mobili. L'attività riprese a Vienna presso uno dei vecchi magazzini di Gebrüder Thonet. A partire dal 1948 Frizjacob, Richard e Evamarie affittarono uno stabilimento a Rohrau, Steiermark, prima di realizzare il loro sito produttivo a Friedberg in 1962. Nel 1976 la società cambiò nome in Gebrüder Thonet Vienna. Recentemente Gebrüder Thonet Vienna GmbH (GTV) ha sviluppato la propria attività fra tradizione e innovazione, continuità e rinnovamento, dando vita ad un programma di produzione articolato, che si propone in primo luogo di recuperare in forma di riedizioni una serie di oggetti storici creati dalla Gebrüder Thonet. Il nome GTV rappresenta l'idea stessa dell'arredamento contemporaneo. Molteplicità delle funzioni d'uso, utilizzo di tecniche produttive avanzate e funzionali alla realizzazione di prodotti unici, innovazione nelle forme e nell'uso dei materiali, uniti ad un design ricercato, sono il fil rouge dei nuovi progetti della GTV, capace di proporre soluzioni innovative attuali ben integrate e coerenti con le riedizioni più classiche del suo catalogo. Pezzi mitici per forma e per qualità di lavorazione, come la sedia N.14, prodotta in oltre 50 milioni di esemplari tra il 1850 e il 1930, riescono ancora oggi ad emozionare ed attrarre nuove generazioni. GTV è in grado di coniugare sempre tradizione e innovazione, ricerca continua di nuove forme e d'alto contenuto di design, sobrietà e versatilità d'uso. GTV è dunque un'azienda aperta al futuro, che trae dal passato i valori e le esperienze per esprimere una collezione che riflette l'evoluzione del nostro tempo.

HISTOIRE

Michael Thonet (1796-1871) et ses cinq fils ont été les producteurs de meubles ayant obtenu le plus grand succès de l'ère industrielle. Invité par le chancelier autrichien Metternich, qui avait vu ses produits à l'Exposition de la Société des Amis des Arts de Coblenze, à développer son brevet en Autriche, en 1842 Michael Thonet laisse Boppard en Allemagne pour s'établir à Vienne, où en 1853 il fonde la société «Gebrüder Thonet» en impliquant ses cinq fils. Dans la capitale de l'empire habsbourgeois, Michael Thonet passe de la technique du bois lamellé collé à celle du bois de section ronde courbé à la vapeur, c'est-à-dire à un processus chimique et mécanique de type industriel. Grâce à cette innovation, il commence à produire des meubles en bois en proposant une collection de formes à la fois élégantes et rationnelles, avec une technique qui permet de produire en grande quantité. À cela s'ajoute très rapidement un système de distribution et de vente en mesure de pénétrer tout type de marché. Au cours de cette période, naissent des produits tels que la chaise "N. 1" conçue pour le célèbre Palais Schwarzenberg de Vienne, considérée comme étant la chaise "type" Thonet, d'où dérivent par la suite de nombreux modèles jusqu'à la chaise "N. 14". Des connaissances technologiques et de production de haut niveau, la diffusion des modèles et la notoriété de l'entreprise poussent les plus grands architectes viennois à réaliser de nouveaux produits. Otto Wagner fait réaliser les décorations pour la Postsparkasse, Adolf Loos dessine la chaise pour le Café Museum et en 1895 il écrit: "Lorsque j'étais en Amérique, j'ai compris que la chaise Thonet est la chaise la plus moderne qui soit". En 1911, le catalogue Gebrüder Thonet compte 980 modèles différents. À la fin de la seconde guerre mondiale, des unités de production indépendantes, qui ont développé différentes entreprises, naissent dans différents pays. En Autriche, la patrie de Gebrüder Thonet, l'activité a été reconstitué par certains descendants de Michael Thonet, dont son arrière-petit-fils Fritz Jakob Thonet et ses fils Evamarie Thonet et Richard Thonet. Après la guerre, ils ont dû repartir de zéro, avec un peu plus que la passion et les connaissances pour le mobilier. Les activités ont repris à Vienne à l'un des anciens entrepôts de Gebrüder Thonet. Depuis 1948 Frizjacob, Richard et Evamarie loué une usine à Rohrau, Steiermark, avant de faire leur site de production à Friedberg en 1962. En 1976 le nom de la société a changé en Gebrüder Thonet Vienna. Récemment, Gebrüder Thonet Vienna GmbH (GTV) a relancé sa vocation pour l'ameublement de caractère, en développant son activité entre tradition et innovation, continuité et renouvellement, en faisant naître un programme de production articulé qui se propose, en premier lieu, de récupérer sous forme de rééditions, une série d'objets historiques créés par Gebrüder Thonet. Le nom de GTV représente l'idée même de l'ameublement contemporain. La multiplicité des fonctions d'utilisation, l'emploi de techniques de production avancées et fonctionnelles jusqu'à la réalisation de produits uniques, l'innovation dans les formes et dans les matériaux, ainsi qu'un design recherché, représentent le fil rouge des nouveaux projets de GTV, capable de proposer des solutions innovantes, actuelles, bien intégrées et cohérentes avec les rééditions les plus classiques de son catalogue historique. Des pièces mythiques pour la forme et pour la qualité d'élaboration, comme la chaise "N. 14", produite en plus de 50 millions d'exemplaires entre 1850 et 1930, réussissent encore aujourd'hui à émouvoir et à attirer de nouvelles générations. GTV est toujours en mesure de conjuguer tradition et innovation, recherche constante de nouvelles formes et haut contenu en design, sobriété et flexibilité d'utilisation. GTV est donc une entreprise ouverte vers le futur, qui tire du passé les valeurs et les expériences pour exprimer une collection reflétant l'évolution de notre époque.

TIMELESS AUTHENTICITY

Gebrüder Thonet Vienna chooses a label with a technological heart to certify the authenticity of its collections. A blockchain system, guarded by a microchip, allows information to be obtained through NFC (Near Field Communication), simply using electronic devices.

This step is part of an ideal dialogue between technology and production. Already in the 19th century, Michael Thonet had introduced a marking system in his production. Initially, the first firestamps branded on the inside of the seats 'Thonet Wien Gump 396', which bore the name of the company together with the place of manufacture (the laboratory in Vienna at 396 Gumpendorf Street), were combined with letters and numbers, applied on the chair legs, to simplify the assembly of the products that used to be delivered disassembled to customers all over the world.

After 1853, with the increasing expansion of the business, the most common firestamps became 'GbThonet', 'Thonet' 'Wien' or 'Gt'; later, after 1856, it can be found 'GB.THONET Wien' or 'GB. THONET WIEN', until simply setting on THONET or THONET AUSTRIA in the late 19th century.

The great international success gave birth to numerous companies that marketed similar models of curved wooden chairs. The need to distinguish its products from those of its competitors became a priority and the practical function of firebranding was complemented by the certification of authenticity, provided by the introduction of paper labels glued inside the seat.

The search for useful tools to contrast counterfeiting has seen a significant breakthrough in recent years, when, starting from 2014, Gebrüder Thonet

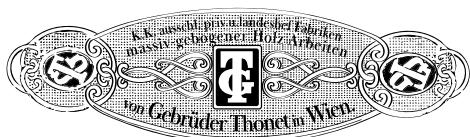

Vienna GmbH (GTV) introduced a coin engraved with the 'Wiener GTV Design' logo alongside the firebrand mark, which showed the year of manufacture. The coin's identification system had been experimented already in the early 2000s.

The solution applied today hence finds an echo in the company's long history. The new technological label has pleasantly classic lines and is placed in the wooden frame of the seats, in a position opposite to the brand-embossed mark. A choice that benefits the traceability and transparency of the products and protects both the company and customer.

A fascinating journey that spans three centuries and tells the efforts needed to recognise intellectual property and the company's attention to valuing authenticity, the manufacturing process and the quality of the product.

THE GREEN CHALLENGE

Year after year, GTV has become increasingly sensitive to environmental issues and with a view to achieving continuous improvement, it complies with the regulations that privilege the use of sustainable processes and materials. A clear sign, an incisive foothold, which marks a path that looks keenly towards the continuity, also ethical, between the production cycle and the product. A major commitment taken by the company to offer concrete guarantees in terms of environmental friendliness and care for the consumer's health, with the aim of establishing a trust-based relationship through an approach integrated within sustainable development. To manufacture its collections, Gebrüder Thonet Vienna GmbH chooses to use wood certified by the FSC®, Forest Stewardship Council®, the main international certification system that ensures that wood is sourced from forests where stringent environmental, social and economic standards are observed. There are also other types of processing on Gebrüder Thonet Vienna products, which are less visible yet just as important - for greater sustainability. Indeed, the company has begun to convert its painting process, moving away from polyurethane-based paints towards the use of water-based paints, both to cut down atmospheric emissions, as well as for greater protection of the staff in charge of this particular process. In 2021 GTV has inaugurated a new Green project, introducing products that are entirely sustainable, including the new Beaulieu chair, designed by Philippe Nigro. For these FSC certified products coated with water-based paint, the company is offering a polyurethane padding produced with the innovative Variable Pressure Foaming (VPF) technology which makes it possible not to use foaming agents that are harmful for the environment, obtaining a material that is foamed solely with water, totally eco-compatible and recyclable. For the upholstery cover, the company uses a selection of fabrics made from plastic or natural recycled fibres. Moreover, GTV uses recycled and sustainable materials for the chair's support feet too, and these can easily be replaced simply with a click-in system. From the finished product to its packaging for dispatch, in FSC certified cardboard, all the internal components are also made of recyclable material and separate, in order to be disposed of in full.

THE TECHNIQUE OF WOOD BENDING

The technique of wood bending is a very ancient technique existing in the craftsmanship of different civilizations, but remained in the corners for a long time due to a limited advantage in productivity.

the technique

The intuition of Michael Thonet took the moves from the observation that fresh wood is more flexible than dry wood : Starting from this consideration, Thonet and some of his contemporaries tested the bending of the wood sheets packets, dipped in boiling glue and then dried into rigid forms.

This solution, however, did not guarantee the strength of the product, because of the precarious nature of the adhesive. To overcome this problem, Thonet tried to work only on the physical properties of the wood, by excluding all the glue from his procedures, in order to recover a considerable flexibility of the material – even after aging – by increasing the smoothness between the fibers by placing them in highly humid environment.

the patent

In 1842, Michael Thonet patented the process that made him famous throughout the world: the wood strips (beech, by far the favorite for its long, regular and knotless fiber) are turned, placed in an autoclave to absorb moisture, bent by force and fixed in metal forms, and finally dried; the finishing of the pieces was followed by the assembly of the "Vienna straw", another element that became characteristic for the company.

A real industrial process that went hand in hand with the progressive elimination of ornaments and joints, in favour of a rigorous line and careful attention to the simplification of the joining elements.

Formal elegance, solidity and lightness have determined the success of the company that in a few years started production sites all over the world. A unique production process that has its roots in a history rich in suggestions and that is now renewed in the high quality of materials that Gebrüder Thonet Vienna chooses to make its products, characterized by valuable elements that unite them with high craftsmanship. The woods, selected for their strength and versatility, are combined with fabrics that enrich the range of colors proposed by the collection with precious nuances.

In Friedberg, Styria (Austria), the „Thonet“ museum, owned by GTV, is a benchmark for its history, where testimonies, curiosities and the most representative original parts of the company find the place to be. In 2019, the first solo exhibition in Italy of works by Céline Condorelli, will include installations, drawings, video and texts created between 2008 and 2014. The exhibition presents her key works together with a new one specially created for Fondazione Scuderie, which will involve an unprecedented collaboration between the artist and Scuderie's production facilities.

For the occasion, Céline Condorelli will be working with the Sheet, dividing it into two spaces: one using relational logic ("May") and the other with a greater degree of distance ("Mayn"). Visitors will walk their way past works – some of which they will be able to activate themselves – often inspired by the visual language of industrial design, architecture and sculpture. The themes of the exhibition include a reflection on the influence of manufacturing processes on human relationships and on the surrounding environment.

The practice of Céline Condorelli (S. Paris, 1974) involves the creation of works, writings and a questioning of the boundaries between contemporary art disciplines. Her work brings together art and architecture in a comprehensive manner, investigating the individual's network of relationships with the world, which acquire concrete shape in the form of cultural, economic, social and physical demands that the artist refers to as "Support Structures". She is a co-founder and curator of the Eastside Projects space in Birmingham. In 2010 she exhibited at Manifesta 6, the European Biennial of Contemporary Art, and in 2014 the Chisenhale Gallery in London and the Van Abbemuseum in Eindhoven devoted two solo exhibitions to her work. In 2016, she wrote and edited a book entitled Support Structures and she has recently published The Company (Birkhäuser) and she has recently published The Company (Birkhäuser).
